SPECIAL THANKS TO:

A GOOD Family

It was on Friday afternoon when we were coming from school with our school mates. We were five students. Umutesi, Mutoni, Peter, Akimana and Umuhoza. We passed by the fence of one family. Arriving there, we heard much noise from that family. We asked ourselves what was happening there. Peter told us to enter and see what was happening.

When we arrived in, we saw a tent where people sat clapping by giving congratulations; others had bottles of beer drinking. I tried to see these people's face; I realize that they were too happy.

From that moment I discovered that there is something good that happened. I looked to the other side I saw a girl wearing a gown meaning that she had graduated from University. That girl whose name was Akanyana was delivering the speech to people who were there. I and my colleagues decided to stand there to listen what she was saying.

Akanyana who was the first born said that her family has five persons, her mother and father and 2 siblings, Gasore and Muhire who was the last born. She continued saying that their parents did whatever they could in order to satisfy their basic needs. Even if they had not enough funds, they worked hard as much as possible, getting up early in the morning and sleeping late in evening.

The graduant continued saying that they worked hard also as children in order to make their parents happy. They got up early morning and make their bed. After that, they all met in the room which they call chapel for praying. Everyone had the duty to lead prayers because they had a weekly schedule on the wall.

After praying, their parents went to job and we shared morning works and everyone did his/her duty that she/ he had to accomplish before going to school. They arrived to school early in order to clean the class and to do revision. After class, they returned home quickly. When they arrived home, they took a rest and washed their uniforms and then revised lessons waiting for food.

At eight o'clock, they sat at table for eating. When they finished eating they cleaned it then they watched news on TV. When they finished, they shared how the day was for everyone. In that time their parents gave them some advice on how they must behave in difficult situation, how to respect their elders such as school leaders, their teachers and even their fellow students. They told them also how they have to work hard in order to have a good future. At eight and a half, they prayed as usual and went to bed.

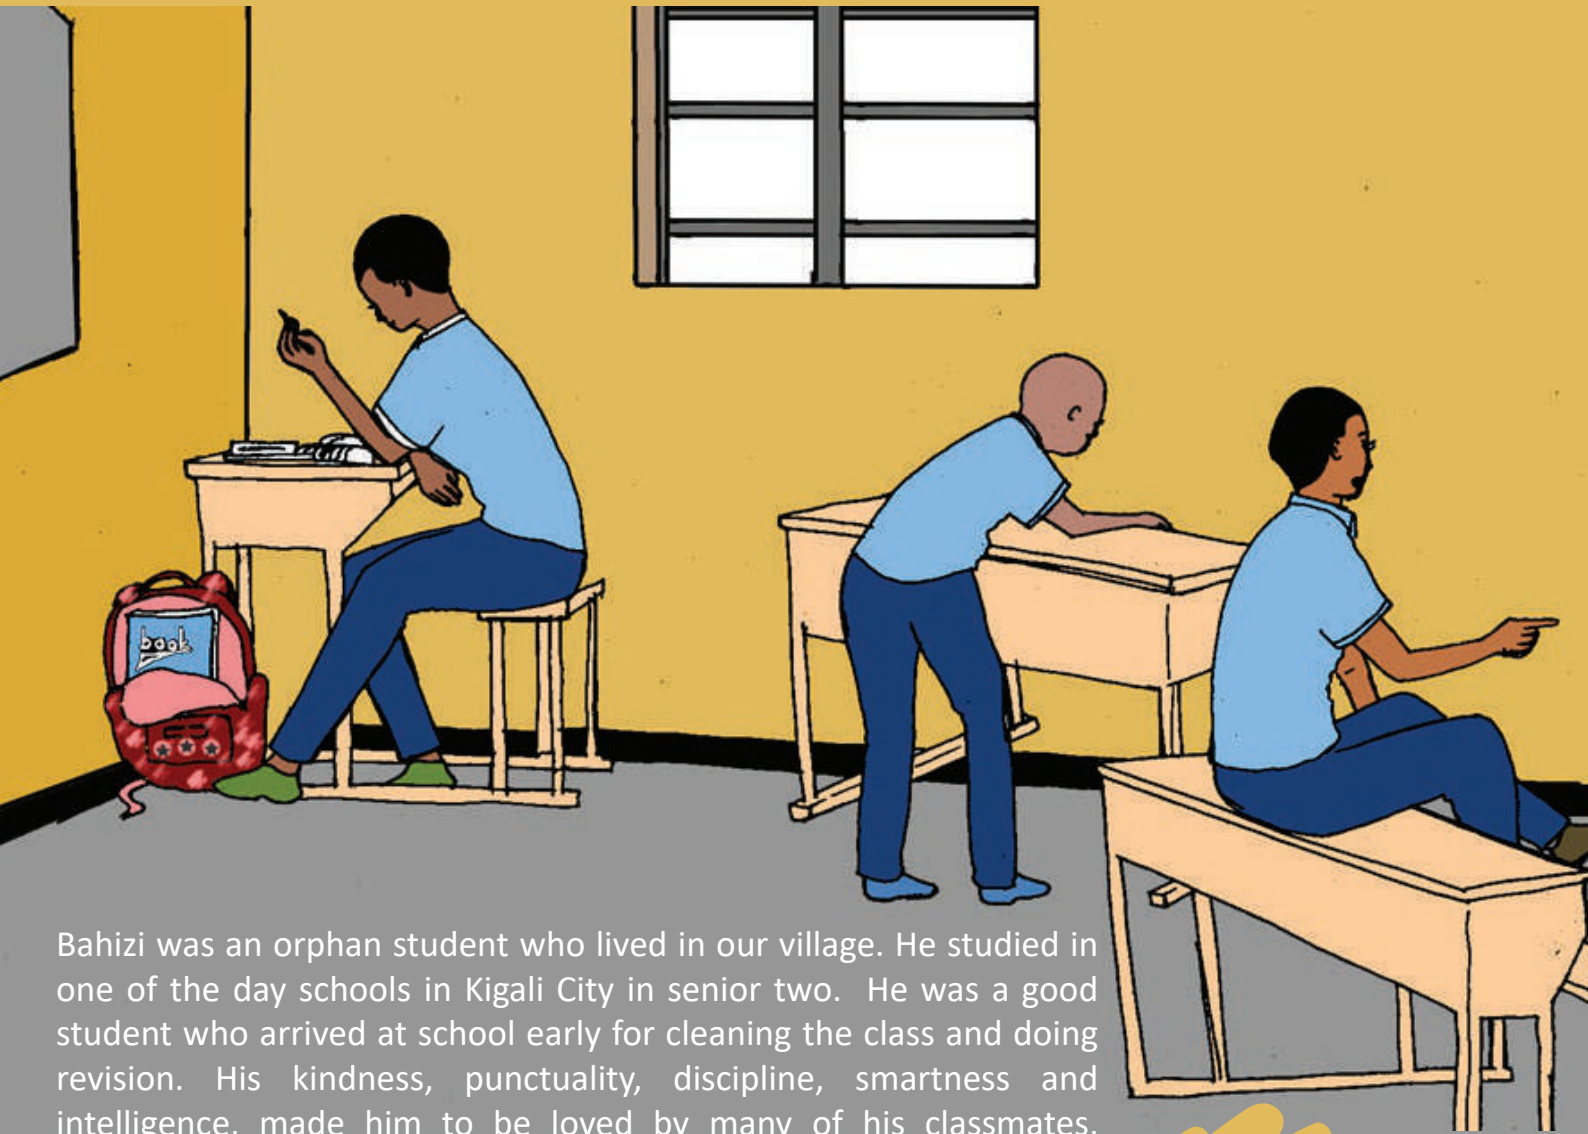

Akanyana went on saying that she continued in that line of working hard, praying, and working together with her parents and even her siblings until she started University where she went to study sciences. Now she graduated that day with first class in her class. The University has awarded her the scholarship to continue her studies abroad, she was going to have a flight the following week.

Akanyana close her speech thanking her parents, her siblings, school leaders and even neighbors for their guidance. She wished to be doctor in her forthcoming.

BAD Friend

Bahizi was an orphan student who lived in our village. He studied in one of the day schools in Kigali City in senior two. He was a good student who arrived at school early for cleaning the class and doing revision. His kindness, punctuality, discipline, smartness and intelligence, made him to be loved by many of his classmates, teachers, and school leaders. Bahizi passed his national examination and got good marks. He was sent to study Tourism in one of the school located in Southern Province.

He went there lately because he lacked school fees. Bahizi's neighbor Uwingeneye took him to school and paid school fees and even other school materials.

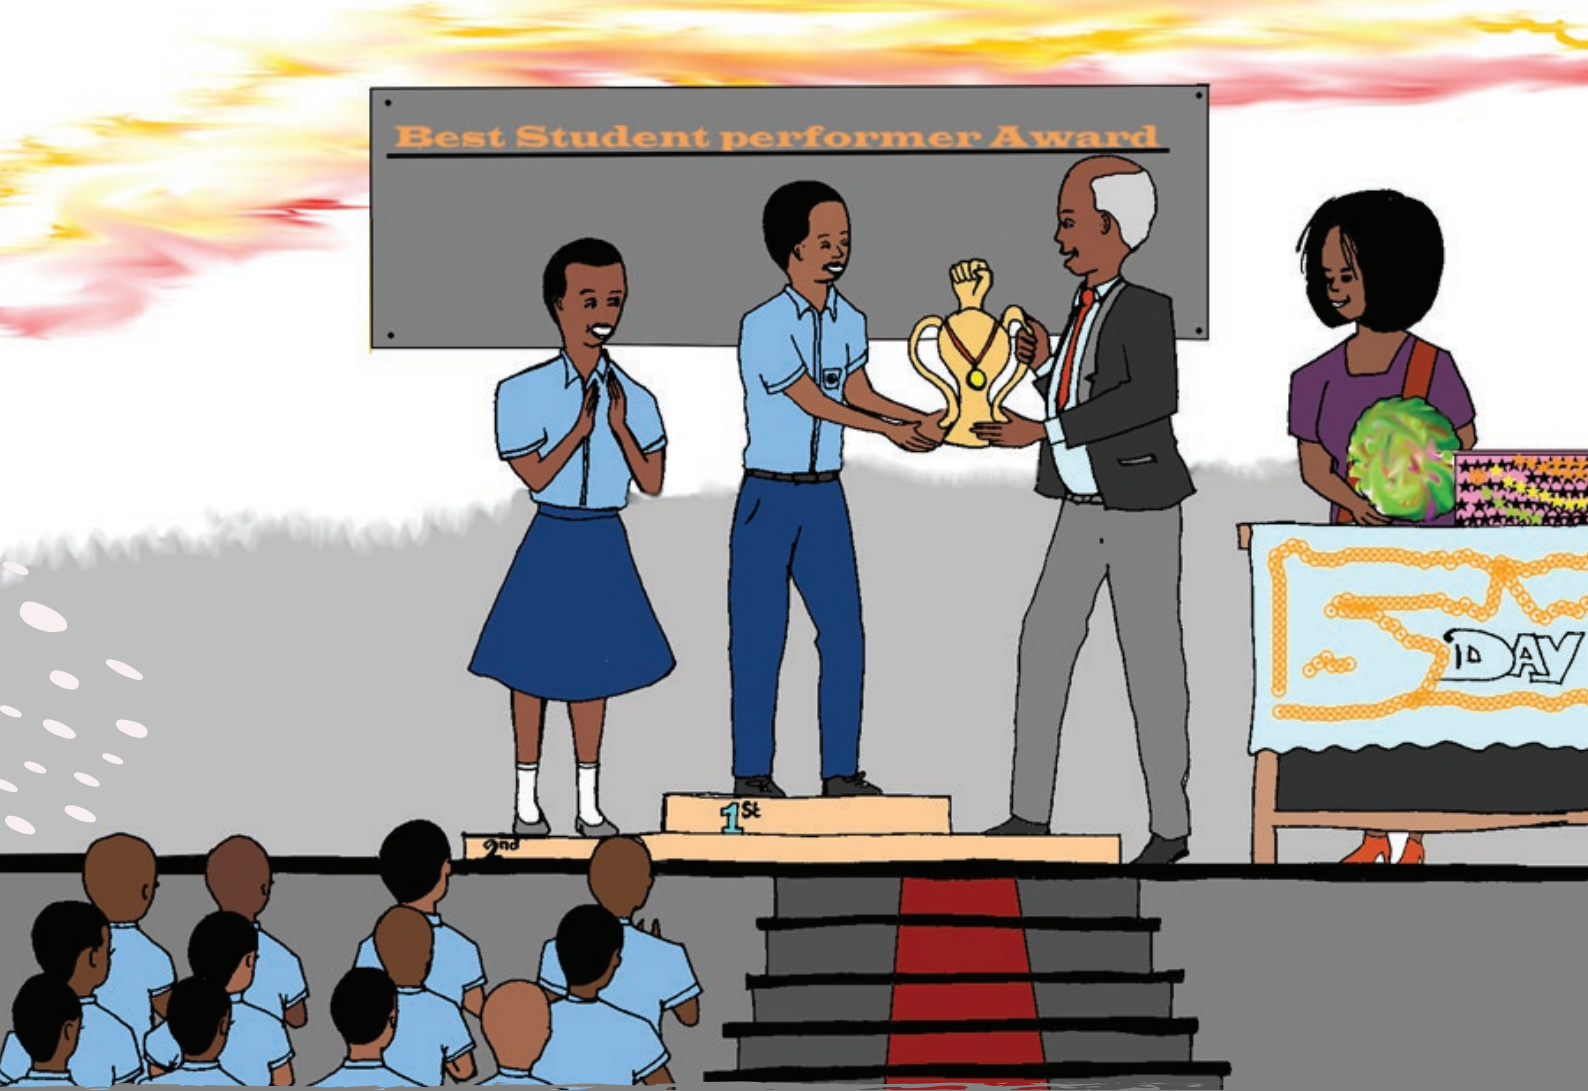

Even if Bahizi arrived at school late, he did his best in order to get good marks. He found the time to concentrate to his studies compared to his ordinary level. In the first term, Bahizi got the 4th place with 78.2% while the first one got 80%. There is a little difference between him and Bahati who was the first. When Bahizi arrived home for the first term holiday, he was proud of his marks and even his sponsor Uwingeneye and his mother were too happy. Bahizi promised them to be the first in the following term.

In term two, Bahizi arrived to school early compared with term one. Bahizi put more effort in order to get better marks as he promised his parents and his sponsor. He got up early morning and went to bed lately in order to become the first in his class. In that period, Bahizi was the president and the founder of English club. He created this English club because of two reasons:

The first one was the failure in one lesson where he was given a presentation and he met a language barrier which led him to get low marks in that lesson. The second reason was that, as someone who would be receiving different people from different areas in hotel or as a tour guide, it would require him to be fluent in English.

By the end of the second term, Bahizi became the first in their class and even in the whole school. Bahizi became famous in the whole school as an intelligent student. He got an award for the whole school as the best performer.

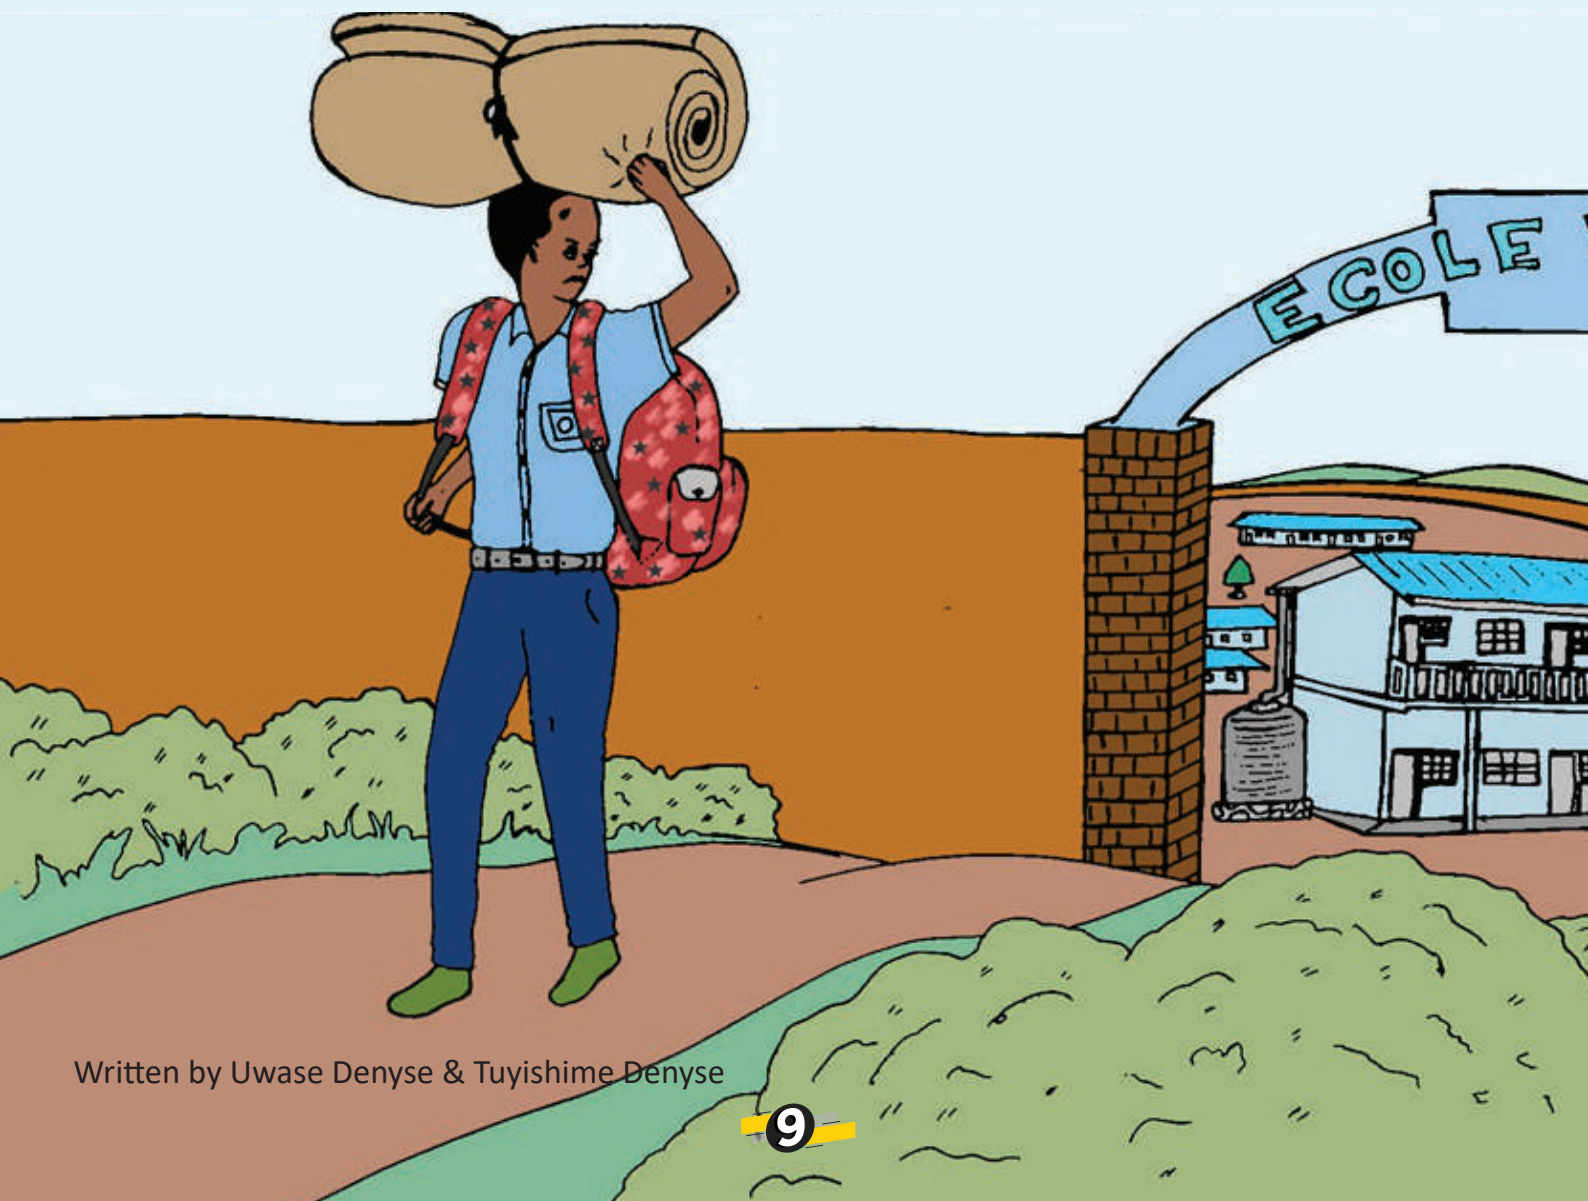

In senior five, Bahizi continued with the same speed. By the end of term one, he met a new friend called Gasazi by nickname. Gasazi was not a good boy. One night, they planned to go out of the school. Gasazi told Bahizi that he wanted him to know some school suburbs. Bahizi went with him and they crossed around the school. They went in the club for dancing.

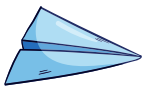

At that time Bahizi was afraid because it was his first time to be out. Gasazi told him that he had not fear because a real man must be fearless. Gasazi and Bahizi drank different kinds of beer and finally Bahizi got drunk because it was the first time to drink beer.

Bahizi and Gasazi returned to school at mid night when all students were asleep. They silently and slowly entered the dormitory. Fortunately, no one heard them. After thirteen minutes, Bahizi who was not familiar with beer, began to vomit. Other students woke up to see what was happening to intelligent and famous student. At that time patron also came and they all knew that Bahizi was drunk.

In the following morning, on the school assembly, Bahizi was called in front of other students and asked where they had taken beer. He was asked also other students whom they were together in the previous night. Bahizi said that he was alone. The school headmaster told him that if he refused to tell them the truth he would be chased. Bahizi said again that he was alone. In that time, the school headmaster told patron to go with Bahizi to take his school materials to go home.

BITTER PAST, Better Future

Joseph was an ambitious man with great expectations in his future. He lived with his little sister called Emma. He owned a company and he treated his employees as if they were his siblings. Every worker loved him because he was a good and humble man. Some people thought that he wasn't rich because of his humbleness and how he lived with all people. Regardless of his kindness, Joseph had bitter family background. He passed through sorrowful life. Joseph's parents along with his other four siblings died during the Genocide against Tutsi of 1994 in Rwanda. Only two of the whole family remained, namely Joseph and his sister Emma who was in her late twenties.

In Joseph's life, he loved only one girl named Angel. Unfortunately, they did not continue being friends because Angel's father and her uncle participated in killing people including Joseph's family. When Joseph remembered how his parents were killed and how the killers were the parents of his beloved girlfriend, he decided to cancel his relationship with Angel.

His sister Emma always tried to convince her brother to forget what happened and move forward in order to rebuild his friendship with Angel, but Joseph didn't want to understand his sister's advice. He answered his sister Emma that she knew nothing about it and that was the reason why she was saying nonsense. Joseph was unhappy because he always thought about what had happened.

On the another side, Angel's father called Karangwa was ashamed of what he did for Joseph's family. He didn't want to accept the wedding ceremony of his daughter Angel with Joseph. He thought that it was impossible for her daughter to marry the boy whose parents were killed by him.

Joseph's sister Emma never gave up. She continued convincing his brother and talking with Karangwa's family with a good heart. Emma told them that they should forget about the past. She added that criminals got punished that is why there was no need for continuing their hatred. They have to forgive each other, live in harmony and work together to build the country.

Karangwa also wanted to ask for forgiveness even though he thought that he could not be forgiven because of shameful actions he did to Joseph's family. One day, they went to church to pray but none of them looked at other's face and they sat on the same desk. For that Sunday, the preacher talked about forgiveness and reconciliation. He said: "At the doom's day, God will ask you what you did for others not what others did for you. He added that if you forgive; you have to forget". Everyone between them was convinced with what the preacher said.

In the following morning, Joseph went to Karangwa's family to forgive him. Joseph told Karangwa that they had to forget the past and try to build their future together. He added that what happened was caused by bad leadership in Rwanda before The Genocide against Tutsi in 1994.

So, both of those two families accepted to work together as Rwandans. From that time, Joseph started dating Angel and asked her if she might be a mother of his children and his beloved wife forever. Angel ended up accepting that proposal without hesitating because she loved Joseph too. Joseph promised Angel that he would love her forever and Angel promised Joseph to be beside him like the wall of Jericho.

Karangwa also told Joseph to treat his daughter well. Three months after, Joseph and Angel got married. All families and neighbors were happy to see how those two families were working hand in hand to begin their new life chapter. Emma also started preparing herself in strengthening her love with her beloved, Chris.

Never be a prisoner of your past, learn from it and work for better life!

CHANCE Comes ONCE

00

There was a rich man called Kamali who lived in one village. Kamali cheated his wife by having sex with another woman who used to sell herself and impregnated her. In order to hide the truth, he gave her much money to abort so as to get rid of pregnancy. The pregnant mother tricked him as far as she could and did not do so.

After three months, Jessica who was the second wife of Kamali begot a child. She called her Annah. Annah grew up without knowing her father. Her family was poor and her mother was still selling herself to find money to feed her family. After fifteen years, Jessica died of HIV/AIDS.

Before her death, she wrote a long letter saying that: "My beloved child, I'm sorry because I did not tell you the truth that you asked me for a long time. I know that you want to know your father but I did not do so for the following reason:

The one who impregnated me was a rich man. I didn't want him to know that you were born because he had requested me to abort by giving me much money. I did not want your father to know that I did not do what he told me. If he knew that you were alive, he would kill me because of his money. This is my time to tell you the truth. Your father is called Kamali, the famous businessman in our district. I wish you all the best to meet your father face to face. I love you my daughter."

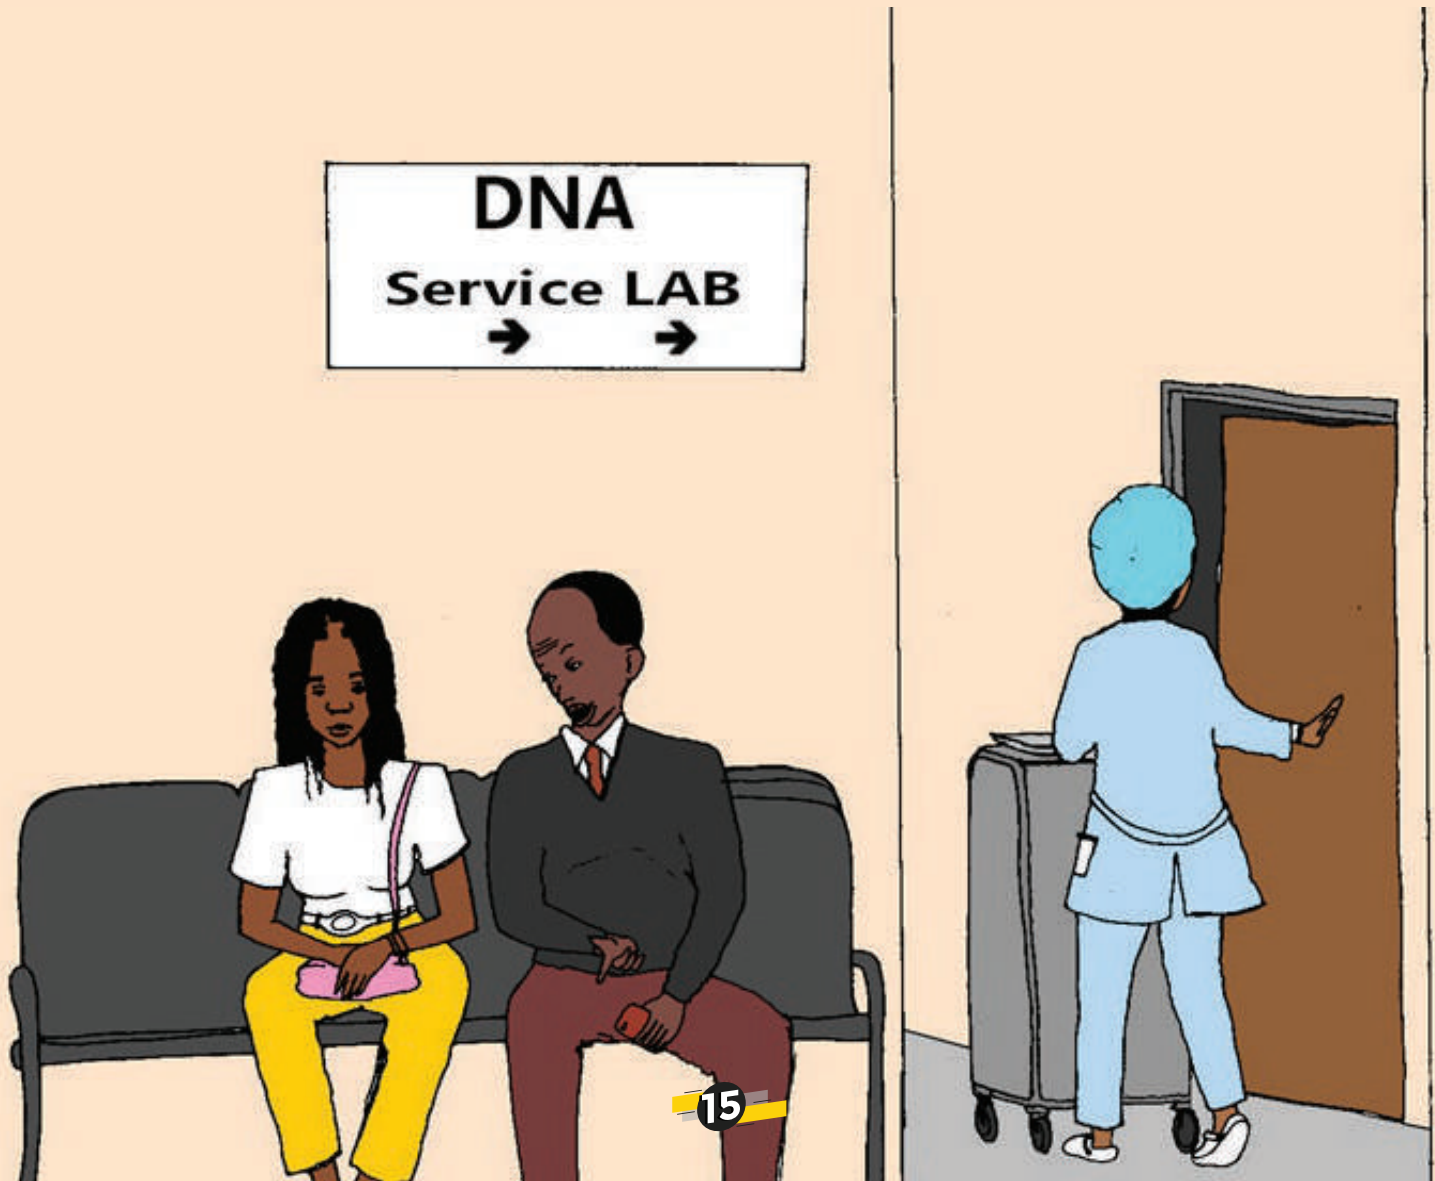

From that moment, Annah tried to investigate who and where his father was in order to meet him at least and to tell him that she was her own daughter. Finally, Annah knew Kamali's daughter called Umuhire who was The general Director of the company in charge of importing coffee, tea and some fruits to foreign countries.

Annah got Umuhire's phone number. She called and told her that she wanted a job. Regardless of her status, Umuhire was a kind girl who received and helped both the rich and the poor. Umuhire told Annah that if she wanted a job, they would meet on the following day.

Umuhire took initiative to go to see where Annah lived. When Annah saw Umuhire, she was very excited to see Umuhire coming to see her at home. They conversed, then Annah gave Umuhire her mother's letter. Reading that letter, Umuhire was not disappointed because she heard information from her workers about her father's child. Umuhire took Annah to market for shopping clothes and took her home.

When Umuhire arrived home with Annah, her mother Mukamusoni was happy to see her. Mukamusoni welcomed her like her own daughter. At night when her husband arrived, he was happy to see Annah thinking that she was a new housemaid but her wife told him about Anna's story that she was his daughter. Kamali denied saying that poor people always try to lie in order to get life in wrong ways. Her wife and his daughter Umuhire convinced him go to check DNA test and he accepted.

The following week, they went all together for DNA test. The test showed that Annah was Kamali's daughter 99%. From that time, Annah was taken as a child of Kamali and Mukamusoni and sister to Umuhire.

From that time, Annah was also given a job in Umuhire's Company as an accountant. In three months, Annah was a good worker and her sister appreciated her too much. From the fifth month, Annah began to claim for a car. She said she did not want to go again with Umuhire in the same car. Her step mother, Mukamusoni told her that it was not a good time to ask for a car while she was still new in the company.

At the eighth month, Annah began to work reluctantly saying that she wanted her own car. From the last month of the year, Annah began to embezzle the company's money. From the beginning of the following year, the company got loss. Umuhire requested an audit committee headed by Kabayiza to find the cause of the loss. The audit found that Annah opened an account for robbery in the other bank. They found three million deposited from the beginning of the sixth month of the year. She was arrested for further investigation.

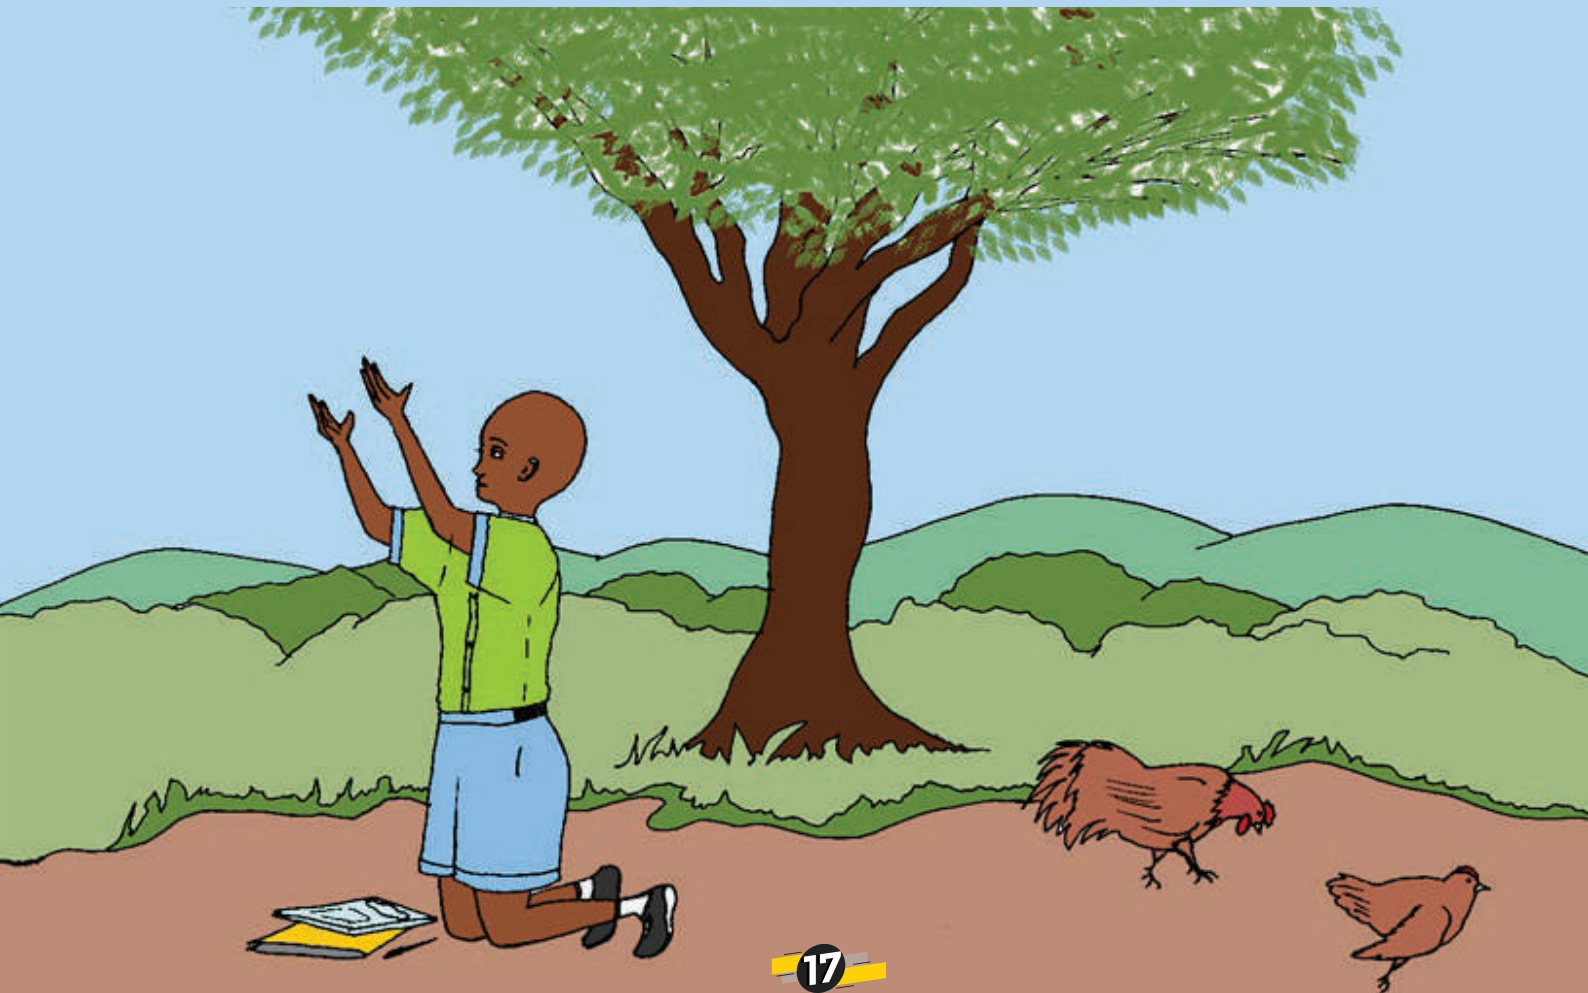

Her family, especially her sister Umuhire was sad to see Annah in jail. They were shocked to see Umuhire stealing money from the company whereas she was given everything.

James AND HIS Step Mother

James was one child in his family. His mother died of a road accident happened last Christmas. James's mother died when he was 12 years old. He studied in Primary school. James's father was a driver outside the country. He drove from Kigali to Kampala.

After the death of James's mother, Kagabo took James to his grandmother to take care of him. After 4 months; Kagabo saw that his child was not treated the way he wished. Kagabo decided to marry another woman in order to take care of his beloved son. Kagabo married a woman, who had another child, believing that she will treat both children in the same way as parent.

After their marriage, James's father died of the sickness. This was bad for him to lose his both parents. After the death of his father, his step mother started treating him badly. During those thorny days, James continued to become stronger and more courageous regardless of his stepmother bad words. He always prayed Almighty God to help him.

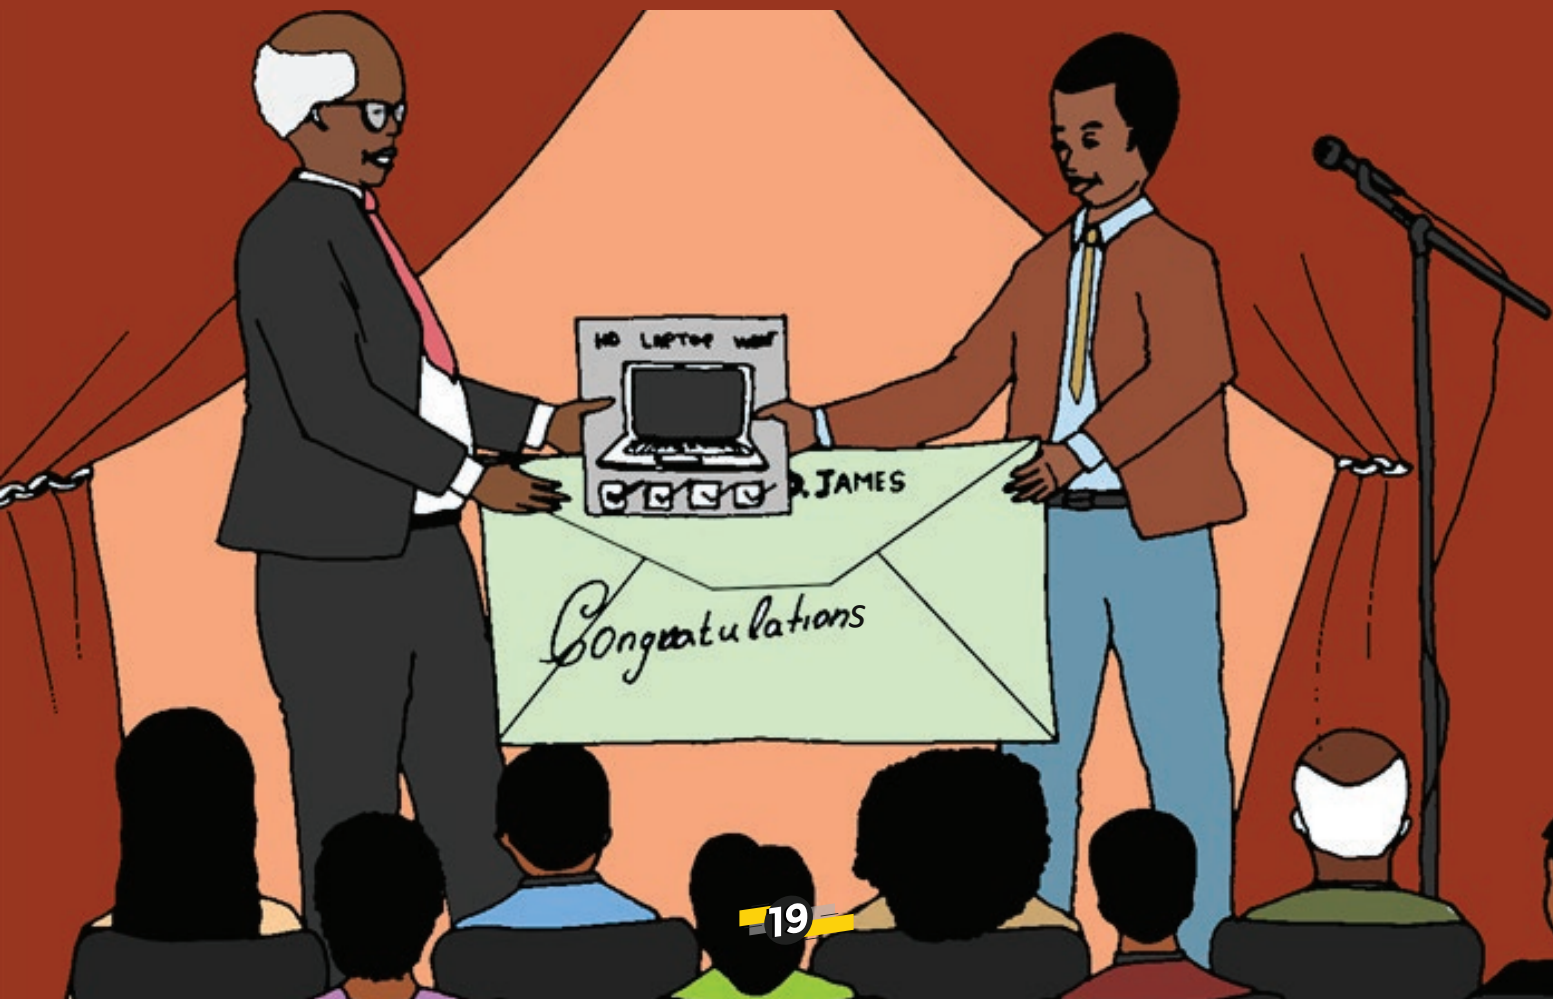

Joseph's stepmother always told him that he was born unlucky and he will never succeed in his life. She always gave him hard works before and after school such as fetching water, collecting firewood, cultivating, cleaning the house and washing dishes. His stepsister Uwera was always watching James doing those hard works. Even if he was mistreated by his stepmother, he always said that his dream will come true one day.

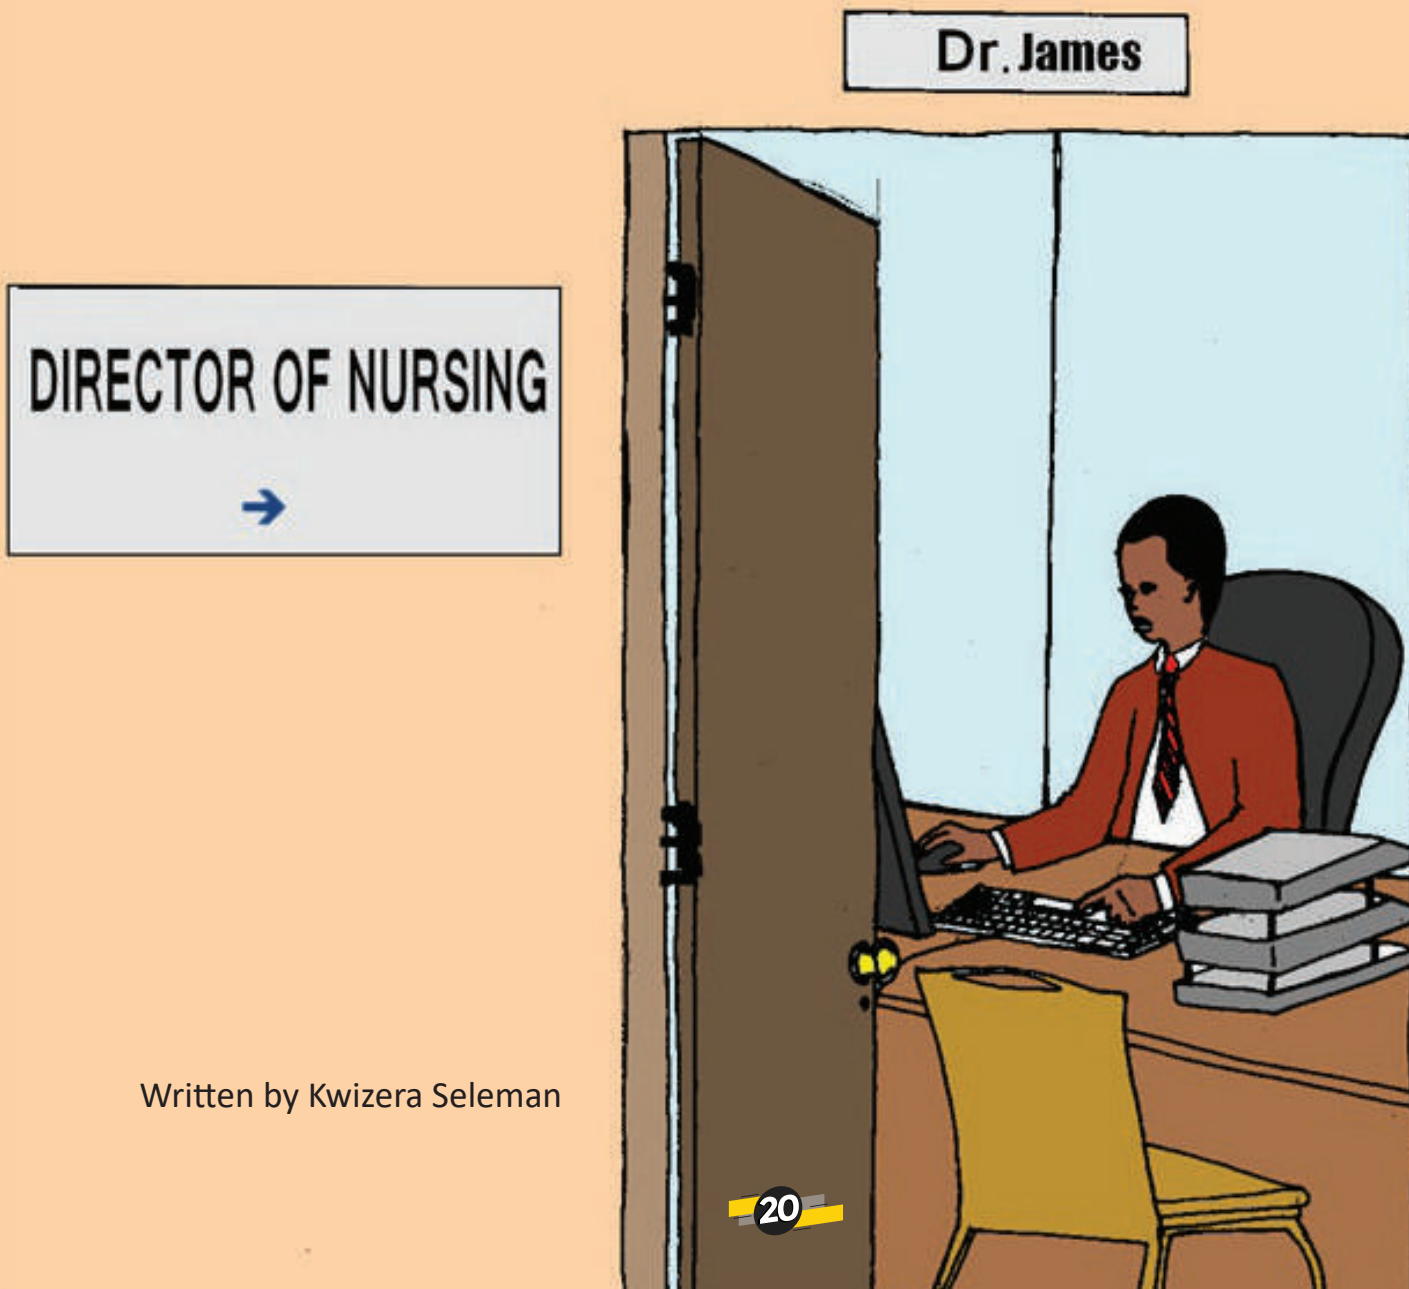

When national examination result was released, James was the first in his district. When his stepmother listened to this interesting story, she said that they were rumors. She accepted when he saw him on Newspapers with other best performers.

James got a district sponsorship for his studies where he went to study to one of the boarding schools in Kigali City. Arriving there, James continued studying hard because; he wanted to be a Doctor. He got 80% in first term. By the end of the year, he got 85 percent and he was awarded as the best performer in the whole school. At that time, James was doing Physics, Chemistry and Biology (PCB).

When James reached senior six, he was among the best performers in the whole country. In that time. He was awarded by Minister of Education.

James continued his University studies for government scholarship in University of Rwanda in faculty of nursing. After his University studies, he got a job in his native district hospital as a Director of Nursing Department in that hospital.

AMINA and KABERA

Kabera and Amina were students in one of primary school. They sat on the same desk from primary four up to primary six. Amina was more intelligent than Kabera. Every year Kabera told the teacher that he wanted to sit with Amina in order to help each other. Kabera was from a rich family while Amina was from poor family. Kabera requested his parents more learning materials so as to share them with Amina.

By the end of primary six, in the middle of the term two, Amina did an accident and her right arm was broken and her back was injured. This accident caused her to lose opportunity to sit for national examination because she was in hospital and she was not able to write with left arm. She was also unable to stand. She could only lie.

For the other side, his desk mate Kabera put more effort to prepare well national exam even if it was not easy for him to work alone. He often went to hospital to see how Amina was but his family was not aware.

It was on Monday, the first day of national examination, Kabera went to the hospital to see Amina. Amina told him, "Go and work for your side and mine; your success will be also mine". Kabera went in exam with purpose of success in order to make happy his intimate friend. By the end of year, national examination result was published. Kabera got good marks. All of teachers even his classmates were surprised with his marks. It was his first time to get good marks as he did.

Kabera joined secondary school in Western province, arriving there he continued performing well until in senior six. After his senior six, his parents sent him to study bachelor's degree in engineering courses in foreign country.

Kabera did not got chance to see Amina again from the beginning of his secondary. In holidays, Kabera remained to her aunt who lived in Western province. His family went to visit him there in holidays.

Amina stayed in hospital for three years even though she was not well healed but at least she can walk a short distance. At the fourth year, she found someone to help her for study tailoring for one year.

When Kabera came from studying abroad, he returned to his family. On Sunday, he went to church because he liked praying much from his childhood as Amina did. Arriving there, he sat with Amina on the same desk. Kabera was the first one to see Amina but Amina did not recognize him because he looked like a stranger to her.

When they arrived out, Kabera approached Amina and reminded her their childhood life. Amina told Kabera that she did not continue her lessons because of the accident. She told him also that she was not well healed her back but the arm was good. She was told to pay one million for surgery but her family was unable to pay because of poverty.

Kabera promised Amina to pay for her money for surgery. He told her also that he will pay school fees to continue her studies in tailoring trade. After one week. Amina went to hospital for surgery. After 3months, Amina was able to go quickly even to run. Amina returned to school to study.

When Amina finished her studies, Kabera took Amina to his family. Kabera told his parents that he was going to date Amina because they loved each other from their childhood. His family refused saying he can't marry a tailor from poor family while there are other girls who have good jobs.

Kabera told them that he can't live without her, he added that Amina means many things for his life. So, Kabera told his parents that is the one who was responsible to choose the one to live with as they did.

After two weeks, Kabera gave Amina an engagement ring telling her: "I want to be with you forever, will you do the honour and be my wife". Amina accepted Kabera's proposal.

Lazy BOY

Tessie, Stella and John were orphans. Tessie was in her late twenties; Stella was 15 years old while John was the last born with 12 years old. Their parents died in an accident happened in the Eastern province main road when they were coming from a wedding ceremony of their friends.

They lived in Kigali city before they die. John was known to be lazy even his classmates knew it well. His elder sister Tessie was in University in level one. After the death of their parents, Tessie decided to send her siblings to the primary school located near their home in order to reduce family expenses.

Tessie as the first born in their family, took responsibility to care for her siblings even if she was a student in University. As a mature child, Tessie went to look for a job in a hotel in order to see how she could solve some family problems. She went to five hotels and even in some VIP pubs but she didn't find. Fortunately, at the 6th, she was employed as a waitress. She had to work from two to seven o'clock pm.

John who was a lazy boy from his childhood. He asked his elder sister to return him in an international school. He took four weeks without going to school. In the fifth week, he went to school. Sometimes, he went without notebooks.

Her sister Stella always told him that he could succeed in any school if he studied well. John did not want to listen to Stella's advice. On the other side, Stella was a courageous girl. She made more efforts in her studies. Stella continued to be the first learner in their classroom because she knew English. This helped her to understand other lessons. Besides learning, Stella had to make sure that everything was going well because her elder sister Tessie was not around.

Tessie did her best to work her new part-time job. She attended it regularly with good service to clients. Many of the clients liked her good service and her politeness. Her boss, Umubyeyi, also loved her because clients increased day by day. Tessie who was a student in University had no time to waste. After finishing her part-time job in the night, she did her school assignments.

By the end of senior three, Stella got good marks and she was oriented in nuns' school at Save. Because of her orphanage, she got a nun from that school who was Headmistress. She accepted to pay for all her school requirements. On the other side, John got lower marks because of his laziness.

Irrespective of her financial capacity, Tessie found a technical school for him where he went to study Electricity. Arriving in boarding school, he continued with his bad behavior and laziness. By the end of the first term, he was the last one of the whole class. This shocked Tessie too much, but as a mature girl who had responsibility to care for the family, she continued to pay his school fees but reluctantly.

When Stella arrived at Butare, their headmistress, nuns and even teachers loved her saying that she behaved like nuns. Their headmistress promised her that if she continued to perform well, she would be paid for the tuition fees in University. This made Stella love her headmistress and nuns in general. In holidays, she remained with them at school. Some teachers even her schoolmates called her “Headmistress’s daughter”.

By the end of senior six, Stella passed national exam and her school headmistress paid her tuition as she promised her. She was sent in Europe to continue her studies. In order to please Headmistress, she become a nun before going to study there.

John finished his level three with the last place. Her sister Tessie told him that she would not continue to waste money for the last student of the class. Tessie was in her late thirties, she decided to marry.

John started begging on the street. He begged even from student with whom they shared the same class in 3 years ago.

Life in our HANDS

In our Village Ubwiza, there was a family of Majyambere and Umugwaneza. This family had two kids, who were twins. A boy was Kalisa and the girl Umuhoza. Kalisa was a wise and courageous boy while the girl was lazy. Their family was not rich but they did everything in order to fulfill their children's basic needs.

Kalisa got up early morning and did house works like cleaning house and washing dishes. After house works, he went to bathroom to wash his body. When Kalisa came from the bathroom, he combed his hair, brushed his teeth, ironed his uniform and then he put on it. Kalisa took breakfast before going to school. He arrived at school at seven o'clock in order to revise his lessons.

Umuhoza who believed that she was beautiful, she got up at seven 'clock in morning. She went to bathroom, and then she ironed her clothes, powdered her face and went to school after taking her breakfast. Umuhoza arrived to school at eight o'clock. She sometimes arrived at school lately.

Kalisa returned from school to home straightly. When he arrived home, he rested and went to market to buy food. Then, he cooked. When the food was ready, he did his homework waiting for their parents to come.

Umuhoza came from school slowly and passed towards playground to watch basket and volley ball matches. Sometimes she took some modeling training. She wanted to be an international model. Umuhoza got home at six o'clock at evening.

Umuhoza was not satisfied with what their parents gave her. She always quarrels with them saying that her parents did not give her whatever she wants. Umuhoza wanted Smartphone, nice clothes to wear during the weekend and even morning transport to go to school. Umuhoza told their parents that If they refused to give what she wanted, she would find them herself. She always said that there were some people, who will give their whatever she needs.

Umuhoza continued with her behavior in order to keep her beauty while Kalisa continued struggling with his lessons and even doing house works as usual.

When they reached senior six in secondary school, Kalisa got better marks in national examination and became one of the best performers at school level. Kalisa got a scholarship to study Engineering in Rwanda Polytechnic. Arriving there, he continued to work hard as usual and also got good marks.

When Umuhoza's brother entered the University. Umuhoza became the last one in their class and because of her pregnancy. At that time, she took a long period lying in bed crying.

After three years, Kalisa finished his studies in Engineering. After his graduation, he got a job, where he was district engineer in charge of infrastructure. After one year, Kalisa built a good house for his family.

On the other side, Umuhoza gave birth to a baby girl but she lived in a difficult life style because she struggled getting her daily food and even milk for her baby.

TWO Girls

There were two girls who were students in the same school. All of them came from rural areas in an Eastern province. The first one was Agatoni and the second one was Umuhire.

Agatoni came from a poor family while Umuhire came from a rich family. All of them met each other at school in senior four. Umuhire's parents didn't give her some necessary basic materials needed at school even if they were rich. Because of this, Umuhire started misbehaving because of what she watched on social media but this decision sometimes annoyed her.

On the other side, Agatoni's family tried to give her basic materials needed at school regardless of their poverty but she was not satisfied. She sometimes tried to find some missed materials from other people but her parents did not know where their daughter got them from.

Agatoni and Umuhire were best friends. They sat on the same desk, they used to sleep in the same bed and they walked together. Other students called them twins. From that moment, Umuhire started to tell her intimate friend Agatoni everything about her family. She told her how they did not provide with her everything she needed despite their richness. Agatoni began to laugh at Umuhire how she came from a rich family and she did not have all teenagers' materials such as smartphone and good clothes.

Every time, Agatoni asked Umuhire to dress well as an urban girl. Agatoni always wore good clothes to the extent that other girls got curiosity and asked her where she got money for buying nice clothes. Agatoni answered them that they had to be innovators and creators. By saying this, some got it a little bit but others weren't aware of what she meant.

One day, Agatoni who was Umuhire's best friend and best desk mate told her to go with her to the market without a permission from the school leaders. Arriving there, they bought different kinds of clothes. They met two boys who knew Agatoni. They told Agatoni to go to visit them at home. Umuhire refused saying that it is time they returned to school but Agatoni told her that they had to spend few minutes there.

In the way going home, they passed in the forest, arriving there, they sat and begun conversing. Two boys had beer in their bags and begun drinking until Umuhire became drunk.

In this time, Agatoni dealt with one boy had sex with Umuhire for payment of five thousand francs to Agatoni. At 3:00 pm, they returned to school and fortunately no one of school leaders caught them. Before leaving the school for long holidays, Umuhire began to change her behaviors by vomiting every time, having weakness and she began rejecting some kinds of food. Her colleagues started guessing that she was pregnant.

Arriving home, she continued to have the same behaviors. Her mother asked her the reason why she was changed a lot. She answered that she changed some food but she would be well very after some days. After one week, her mother took her to hospital for pregnancy test. The result from the laboratory showed that Umuhire was pregnant and that she had twins but she was not affected by other sexual transmitted diseases.

After this, Umuhire dropped the school and started preparing herself to live a life as mother with twins. Her parents helped her a lot and they gave her all things she needed. Her parents blamed themselves because of not having given to their daughter all necessary materials she needed at school despite their richness.

UNBREAKABLE Love

- Eric was one boy in his family. He was born by chance because his parents spent fifteen years without having a child. During that sorrowful period, his parents got different advice from their neighbors, workmates and even choir mates to use other means to have a baby. Some of them told Twizeyimana and Uwiringiyimana that they had to go to ask the ancestors what happened while others told Twizeyimana to cheat his wife, others told his wife to do the same. They refused to do so because They believed in their almighty God doubtlessly that one day they would get a child.
- Twizeyimana and Uwiringiyimana were government employees. Twizeyimana was a secondary teacher while Uwiringiyimana was an engineer in the same district. Both of them had shared same history of love. They had begun their love when they were in secondary school. Twizeyimana was in senior two while Uwiringiyimana was in senior one. They had met in a choir. Finally, Twizeyimana became President of that choir whereas Uwiringiyimana was her secretary in the following year.
- After passing national examination, Twizeyimana continued his studies in senior four, option of Languages in one of the schools located in Western Province. The following year, Uwiringiyimana also passed exam very well and went to study in a technical school located in the city.
- During that period, they were not able to communicate because none of them had a phone. Each one kept on remembering two things: Twizeyimana remembered his beloved girlfriend by the watch and passport photo she gave him. Uwiringiyimana remembered her handsome boyfriend by the necklace that he gave to her on their last meeting. He told her: "I loved you, I love you and I will love you forever, keep my promise and I will keep yours."

Twizeyimana finished his studies before his girlfriend but no one of them was aware of any information about another one. He continued his studies in University in Languages with Education. The girl she missed a lot went to study also in University. She continued to study construction as she did it in a secondary school.

Twizeyimana and Uwiringiyimana finished University in the same year because Twizeyimana studied four years while Uwiringiyimana studied three years. After finishing their studies, Twizeyimana did not get a job immediately, but his girlfriend got it rapidly in the city.

The following year, Twizeyimana passed a job exam. He was called upon to bring his documents in the district office. Arriving in the office, Uwiringiyimana received his documents because the one who was supposed to receive them was absent. Looking into his documents, she found that his name was Twizeyimana Aimable. She shouted loudly with pleasure doubting whether he was the one she missed a lot or not. As a leader, she told him that he would be called again to come back to take his appointment letter.

When Twizeyimana went out. Uwiringiyimana verified Twizeyimana's documents attentively to check whether he was his real boyfriend whom she spent all five years without meeting. Finally, she found out that he was really her friend. From that moment, Uwiringiyimana waited for his boyfriend to come back so as to take his appointment letter.

When Twizeyimana came to take his appointment letter, Uwiringiyimana wore the necklace given by Twizeyimana in ordinary level. He met again Uwiringiyimana in the same office. She tried to talk to him touching her neck to see whether Twizeyimana could look at her neck to see the necklace she wore that day, but he did not care about her because he was happy of having got a job after one year of joblessness.

After getting his appointment letter, Twizeyimana get out with happiness. Uwiringiyimana run after him and met him outside the office. She showed him the necklace he gave her. Twizeyimana shouted out, he thought that he was dreaming. Twizeyimana also showed her passport photo from his wallet. They hugged for three minutes. They both cried at each other's neck.

After one year, they married. Unfortunately, they got a child after fifteen years. They called that child Uwimana Eric. Eric was loved by his both parents. He was sent to study in boarding school in secondary.

In holidays, he had to be at home helping his parents. In a weekend, he had to go to choir for singing. Eric obeyed his parents' advice until he finished University. When he finished his University studies, he created a business where he sold women's body lotion in a city market. He also used to practice decoration activities during weekends.
